Vacation speeches and political meetings appear to indicate an assimilation of the two great poliical parties Mr. Cladstone being left out in the cold. The popularity however, of Lord Derby is decidedly on the wane, his policy on the Eastern Question being deemed truckling and only consistent on the point of keeping out of the war as long as positiole, for besides a powerful current of public opinion setting in in fayour of the furks, there is unnificative an apprehen sion that should the Czar namex Armenia our restice in Asia will suffer and our hold on British India become weakened. The pact hetween the three Emperors is generally desired a vital force, underhald, subtle, and unlagonistic to the power of England. Little is known of its principles beyond this that it assigns Egypt to England as security for her Bastern communipations, utterly ignoring her further interests in the Eastern Question, and its male object is to ohook the spread of democratic institutions within the three Empires, which but for the trees are in bloom, and in the garden of the force of circumstances, would unite in the destruction of Turkey, that is to say, the three Emperors are equally responsible in a moral point of view for this orgel and uninst war. The chess board of Europe however stands thus Germany dare not attack Turkey for foar of France. France date not help Turkey for fear of Germany. Austria dare not attack Turkey because of Hungarian sympathics for the Sulfan. Italy seems prone to strack the Turk and to annex some of his provinces on the Advistic, but for the fear of Austrian intervention and the agitation of the Vation against Bussiae which power the Ultramontanes detest Englandalone is freeteact perfectly untranimelled by any political considerations or combinations except and beyond her own interests, and it is keenly felt that at this fortuitous juncture, when the power of Russia is southered and strained in: her process of aggression a more bellicose minister than Lord Derby should be placed at

On the one hand there is no doubt that the Russian Government has supported the market, whilst on the other it is equally clear that negotiations for an additional loan have proved failures. The Rus, sian mode of raising money is a most rainous one, consisting of the issue of paper money in a variety of shapes oil based on the legal tender dodge which necessarily drives hard ourrency Abroad or into stockings and mises the prices of commodities in the procise ratio to its own scale of deprenation. Thus the silver rouble at par is worth three and two pence the paper rouble having now fallen to one and six. It is needless to say that this cannot last, and that a second campaign must depend on the success of a foreign loan, which a firm attitude, or at all events a threatening one, of Lord Derby would render impossible: Again, when the different circumstances of other conclusion can be drawn than that Muscovite capacity for a double campaign was rightly interpreted by Lord Beaconstield in his celebrated Guildhall speech. Let the two powers go to war -the Russian candle will burn at both ends whilst that of England will burn in a candlestick as thus Russia would be driven from the sea and her trade destroyed - that is, one end of the manufacturing country, would-have to purchase warlike material from abroad, whilst the money spent by England on the war would be expended in the country and give a tramendous impatus to our shipping, manufacturing, and mining interests, affording additional amployment to the working classes as well as to capital. Finally there is the financial consideration. England would have her loans at three and a half per cent, whilst Russia would have to pay at least ten, and that dis-

In France mutters have taken a fayourable turn—small thanks to Marshal MacMahon or his advisers. The attention of owners, agents, and charterers of steamers is drawn to the provisions of The Post Office Ordinance, 1876, which comes into orce on the 23rd instant. Under the old Ordinance no notice was required of the departure of a vessel if not advertised, nor of departures for Canton or Maczo.

Notice is now required of any departure, though with regard to sailing ships, the old rule will practically remain in force, that notice need not o sent unless asked for. Section XXV, requires that the first notice be sent to the Post Office. In the case of steamers plying regularly or on fixed days, notice of any change in the day or hour will be sufficient. Stamped correspondence may still be sent on board any vessel after the Mail is closed at the Post Office. The Postmaster-General takes this opportunity
